

APRIL NEWSLETTER 2020

A supportive system is an ongoing balancing act. It is about providing the guidance and care for a team, while keeping a professional and disciplined relationship.

Road to Green Environment

*Transparency
Sustainability
Traceability*

April Activities

Issue 01:
New Year, New Gains

Issue 02:
Young Generation Needs Environmental Legacies

Issue 03:
Meet Okka Phyto Maung, our Nominated CFO/CMO to 30 under 30 from Forbes

Issue 04:
Raising Public Health Awareness During COVID-19 Pandemic

Issue 05:
RecyGlo is Offering Online Training Courses

Road to Green Environment

New Year, New Gains

RecyGlo is about to turn three years old; since 2017, we have striven to implement recycling services in Myanmar. However, as any other startup around the world, we are facing an economic downturn during the COVID-19 pandemic. In these uncertain times, we had to cancel our events, trips, and work-in-office, yet we will not let that affect our spirit.

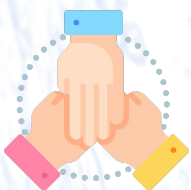

We would like to contribute with our experience by sharing some tips on working from home and the takeaways from our team. How do we spend our day? Find below some ideas on how you could improve your own personal development throughout these tough times.

Holding Daily Team Meeting

Setting Individuals Goal
Setting with Team
Members

Participating in the Internal Training from
Each Department

Checking for Personal
Development

Road to Green Environment

Myanmar's Younger Generation Needs Environmental Legacies

“Better Environment Better Tomorrow”

Humans are capable of reinventing themselves, leading and changing when uncertainty hits. That’s why our legacy has an important role for all of us in any long-lasting action plan.

Certainly, our planet needs a deep breath. Myanmar has been unusually and exponentially exploiting the natural resources for economic growth and applying inappropriate environmental management plan. The impact of our actions in nature outlines the importance of managing natural resources.

Furthermore, urban waste is a large contributor to an unhealthy environment such as air quality and its related health issues. For this reason Myanmar needs proper solid waste management, which should be controllable, and accessible for the public, the guidelines from the government and private waste management sector.

Our younger generation will participate in the waste management action plan to have a long-lasting result with our functional and practicable legacies in the future. Hence, we must certainly have environmental legacies from the beginning of the action plan for our natural resource management.

Meet Okka Phyo Maung, our Nominated CFO/ CMO to 30 under 30 from Forbes

“

Grit is the key to be successful

-Agenla Lee Duckworth

Okka Phyo Maung
CFO/CMO, Recyglo
Myanmar

Q:How were your experience and selection process during competition?

A:It went through the nomination process and the judges selected the nominees. I was nominated by multiple individuals and organizations and Forbes magazine informed me that I need to submit my own portfolio with media presence and my activities.

Q: How do you see yourself as a leader of 30 under 30?

A: This is not a one-time event rather a lifelong journey. I would like to do what I love to do in my life and keep doing it again and again.

Q: How do you see this opportunity for our community?

A: I believe this comes with the responsibility to contribute back to the community. I now have a strong urge to make a bigger and better difference.

Q: How would you like to pass a message for young driven leaders in Myanmar?

A: The drive within you will create better tomorrow. Keep the drive strong and alive at all times!

Raising Public Health Awareness During COVID-19 Pandemic

Our vision is “To create a Cleaner and Better Place”. Raising public health awareness on the waste management sector is definitely part of it. According to the different working areas and sectors, we could have more or less same impact. Some of us still going to work, and some have two months doing home office permission. Fair enough, no one could foresee how the COVID-19 pandemic would shake the world.

In these unstable moments, we aim to raise and promote public healthcare through our “Wash your Hands” campaign in Yangon. We distributed 1,500 posters with instructions on how to wash one’s hands in public places, including shopping malls, parks, and crowded areas in Yangon, Kyi Myin Ding and Myay Ni Kong quarters and public transportation area. Through this campaign, people from different places have benefited from access to basic knowledge on protection and prevention of COVID-19. Learning how to properly wash their hands might save the lives of many!

"Road to Green Environment"

Let us know which topics you would love to have online training for next session

We have hosted "Waste Awareness Online Training for Children 2020"

RecyGlo is offering Online Training Courses

During the COVID-19 pandemic, we successfully hosted our very first online training on the 11th of April called “Waste Awareness Online Training for Children 2020.” Our trainer, May Khaing Phyo Shwe (Candy), with the participation of parents and children, provided very useful information, lessons, and exercises that would remind our generation how to continue and practice proper waste management.

Don't hesitate to sign up to our upcoming online training here!

Email : contact@recyglo.com , communication@recyglo.com

Phone : +959404245800

Website: www.recyglo.com

Address : No.253/257(A), 11th Floor, Corner of 29th and Anawrahta Road, Yangon,
Myanmar

Follow us:

Road to Green Environment

